Report on the Biodiversity of Taxonomic Flora

Biodiversity refers to the variety and variability of life on Earth, encompassing different species, ecosystems, and genetic variations within species. Among the most important aspects of biodiversity are the different forms of plant life, also known as flora. The taxonomic study of flora involves classifying plants into hierarchical categories such as kingdom, phylum, class, order, family, genus, and species. This report provides an overview of the biodiversity of taxonomic flora, focusing on the importance, classification, and conservation of plant species.

A deliberation on the Biodiversity of Taxonomic flora was nicely interpreted by our resource person Dr.Jagadish Vishnu Dalavi Research Associate Department of Botony Western Regional Center Pune. On 27-12-2023.
